MARKS NAMED FIRST OMBUDSMAN AT OHIO

Dr. Lester J. Marks is Ohio University's first ombudsman.

An associate professor of English, Dr. Marks was appointed to the post in October by Pres. Claude R. Sowle.

The need at Ohio University for an ombudsman was pointed out during last summer's workshops on the future of the University. President Sowle announced creation of the post in August and the following month named a search committee to prepare a statement of the ombudsman's

Dr. Marks has been at Ohio University since 1959, except for a two-year leave of absence when he received a Fulbright-Hays appointment in 1966-68 to lecture in American literature at the Norwegian Advanced Teachers' Training College, Trondheim.

While in Norway and also during a year of undergraduate study at the University of Stockholm, Sweden, Dr. Marks observed the tradition of the ombudsman as a civil post in the Scandinavian countries where it originated.

Dr. Marks received the Certificate of Excellence in the Teaching of English last spring, an award of the Modern Languages Association and the Association of Departments of English. He is the first Ohio University faculty member to be so honored.

In addition to his ombudsman's duties, Dr. Marks has continued teaching on a limited basis. He is on the executive committee of the faculty senate and has been a Outler Program faculty fellow, a faculty fellow to the residence halls and an officer of the American Association of University Professors.

Among his professional activities, Dr. Marks is the author of Thematic Design in Novels of John Steinbeck, and he has edited and contributed to English periodicals. He served several years on the National College Board Committee for Advanced Placement in English and has worked on curriculum revision of undergraduate programs for national professional organizations.

Dr. Marks is a graduate of New York University.

duties and to submit to him a list of qualified nominees.

Consisting of two faculty members, an administrator and one graduate and four undergraduate students, the search committee considered approximately 50 nominations before reducing the number to several names which were submitted to the president for his selection.

The ombudsman's primary duty, as defined by the committee, is to assist students and other members of the University community in expediting settlements of complaints and grievances.

"The responsibilities of the ombudsman will be unique in that they require an independence from University authority and accord the ombudsman himself no direct authority," the committee said.

"The ombudsman's power lies in his prestige, persuasiveness and persistence in stating his views to persons involved in a grievance and, if necessary, to their organizational superiors. He should supplement, not supersede, other means of redress."

The term of appointment to the ombudsman office was set at two years with reappointment possible for a term of not more than two years.

ARRIVAL OF THE HIGH Energy, High Intensity Tandem Van de Graaff Accelerator was greeted with enthusiasm by the nuclear physicists but with some curiosity by passers-by.

Nuclear Physicists End Anxious Wait

When the High Energy, High Intensity Tandem Van de Graaff Accelerator rolled into Athens on a truck Oct. 26 there were many people who undoubtedly mistook it for the yellow submarine.

The $1 million piece of equipment, however, is far from an aquatic masterpiece.

The tandem electrostatic accelerator is a tool for studying the structure of the atomic nucleus, and Ohio University's nuclear physicists who will use it opted for a different color, one which they feel best describes their reaction to its long-awaited arrival. They painted it old orange.

"It's finally arrived. We're excited about this and extremely anxious to get underway with our research," reports Dr. Roger Finlay, one of Ohio's four nuclear experimentalists.

The University has been supporting nuclear physics research for the past ten years, but it wasn't until 1967 that the program took on major proportions.

That year the nuclear physicists "won" a $1 million grant from the Atomic Energy Commission for purchase of an accelerator. The AEC award had come after a lengthy period of review and evaluation of proposals by 12 universities for an accelerator or for similar devices. The proposals of the final four contenders were studied by expert consultants at universities and national laboratories across the country.

Ohio University's proposal was cited by the reviewers and by the commission as the one which best reflected an understanding of how to utilize such an expensive and unique facility. Completion of several successful experiments, a growing staff of outstanding nuclear physicists, increasing graduate student enrollment in the area and the presence of a new building for research were all major factors in the AEC's selection of Ohio University.

"It's been an anxious wait and a frustrating time in which the field has advanced and we have not been able to participate," says Charles Brient, who heads the team of nuclear physicists.

"The kind of research we're interested in is in a field which has been very active and profitable for a long time. Now we can join the club. They (the nuclear physicists at similar laboratories, among them Harvard, Michigan State and Stanford) know we're here and that our facility can do things that, in some cases, theirs cannot. On the other hand, there are features of their laboratories which we don't have," Finlay says. He foresees a period of collaboration, with people from these laboratories coming to Ohio University for short periods, and, conversely, Ohio's physicists traveling to other installations.

There are approximately 20 such laboratories in the country, experimentalist Dr. Jacobo

THE OHIO BOBCATS were to have played Marshall University in their season's finale Nov. 21 over Dad's Weekend. Instead, the players, coaches, students and their dads gathered in Peden Stadium at 1:30 p.m. to pay tribute to the Thundering Herd and their coaches who were killed in a tragic air crash near Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 14.

Dr. Paul M. Kendall, regents professor emeritus of English

Doctor of Humane Letters Conferred on Dr. Kendall

Ohio University has conferred the honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree on Dr. Paul M. Kendall, regents professor emeritus of English.

Dr. Kendall, who is known to hundreds of Ohio University students and alumni as the dramatic interpreter of Shakespeare, received the degree Nov. 6 at the home of Pres. and Mrs. Claude R. Sowle during a special reception honoring him.

The degree honored Dr. Kendall for his 33 years as a distinguished teacher and scholar at Ohio University and as one of the foremost biographers of our time.

Dr. Kendall, named a distinguished professor in 1959 and a regents professor in 1966, retired from the Ohio faculty in June and is now a visiting professor of English at the University of Kansas. There he is editing The Complete Works of Shakespeare with world-renowned Shakespearean authority, Dr. Charlton Hinman.

A prolific writer of scholarly works, Dr. Kendall's most recent book, Dispatches of Milanese Ambassadors, is the first of a many-volume edition being published by the Ohio University Press.

Historical biographies by Dr. Kendall which have won international praise are Richard III, Warsaw the Kingmaker and The Yorkist Age. His book, The Art of Biography, received a 1963 Pulitzer Prize nomination.

Dr. Kendall's wife, Carol, who accompanied him to Athens, is a well-known author of children's books.

Two other men were accorded similar honor by Ohio University in late August. Dr. Martin W. Essex, superintendent of public instruction for the State of Ohio, and Barton A. Holl, southeastern Ohio area leader and Logan businessman, received the honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

Dr. Essex is nationally known for his leadership in educational legislation, curriculum design, international education and management techniques. Under his leadership Ohio has recently completed the most far-reaching reorganization for vocational education purposes in the history of the state.

Holl, who is president and general manager of the Logan Clay Products Co., is a former chairman of the board and a life director of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce. As an active conservationist for southeastern Ohio, Holl has been a member of the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board since 1951 and is a member and former chairman of the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission.

COMMITTEE TO SET GOALS FOR OHIO

An aims and objectives committee to determine Ohio University's "measurable goals" was named in October by Pres. Claude R. Sowle.

The president's action came after a University task force on budget goals and priorities recommended establishment of the committee, which will become a standing committee after its initial report to the president on Feb. 1, 1972. After that the committee members will meet at intervals to review and re-evaluate the stated goals.

In its report, the budget goals and priorities task force recommended a long-range plan for University budgeting, to be underway in 1972, and interim procedures to cover the next two years. The task force stressed the need for determining specific goals and priorities at all budget levels and for incorporating within budget proposals criteria for judging the achievement of goals.

Interim budgeting procedures recommended by the task force provide for a series of reviews at all budgetary levels. A University budget committee will coordinate all of the area and academic budgets.

Approval of the budget recommendations was the first action taken by President Sowle on recommendations of six special task forces which have spent the past year reviewing and assessing the University's operations. Recommendations on other task force areas — academic goals and priorities, student life, University resources, University services and University facilities — are currently being studied by the president.

Mrs. Jody Phillips Is Second Woman To Sit on Ohio Board of Trustees

For the first time in 19 years — and the second time in the history of Ohio University — a woman has been named to the Board of Trustees.

Jody Galbreath Phillips, '46, was appointed to a nine-year term, commencing in September, by Gov. James A. Rhodes. She succeeds Joseph B. Hall, Cincinnati, whose second term expired last spring.

A mother of four children, Mrs. Phillips is the wife of Columbus businessman James Wallace Phillips and the daughter of John W. Galbreath, a University trustee for 26 years and currently an honorary member of the board. Galbreath Chapel on the campus green was built in 1957 in memory of her mother, Helen Mauck Galbreath, '19, who died in 1946.

The other woman to serve as a trustee was Evelyn Coulter Luchs, '27, who was on the board for three years, beginning in 1949. She is the wife of Rev. Fred Luchs.

Active in a number of civic organizations in Columbus, Mrs. Phillips serves on the boards of the Willson Children's Center, the Hearing and Speech Center of Columbus and Central Ohio, the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts and the Women's Juvenile Service.

She is a past chairman of Twig 99 of the Children's Hospital and Guild Y of the First Community Church.

Two of the Phillips daughters are in college, Dianne, a senior at Vanderbilt University, and Deborah, a sophomore at Briarcliff College. Their son, John, a senior at Columbus Academy, and daughter Cynthia, a high school junior, live in Upper Arlington with their parents.

Old Music Building Named for Dr. Gordy

John P. Gordy Hall is the new name of the former School of Music building which now houses the Department of Philosophy.

In designating John P. Gordy as the hall's name, the Board of Trustees honors Ohio University's first professor of philosophy and pedagogy.

Dr. Gordy taught at Ohio University from 1886 to 1896. During his ten years at Ohio, later commonly called the Gordy Years, he gained a reputation as an intellectual giant and an outstanding teacher.

In addition to his teaching, Dr. Gordy authored three books, was joint editor of the Journal of Pedagogy and helped develop courses in a field just then beginning to be called "education."

A bronze tablet in Dr. Gordy's memory, which had been in Cutler Hall at one time, has been placed inside the hall named in his honor.

The National Scene

Prepared for our readers by the editors of The Chronicle of Higher Education.

■ Science Squeeze: Academic scientists used to look forward to substantial yearly increases in federal aid. Times have changed. With the economy in a bind, notes the head of the National Science Foundation, scientific research is "apparently one of the delicacies that can be trimmed from our national diet." After experiencing annual gains of 12 per cent several years ago, science now confronts a 5-per-cent decrease, a congressional panel reports. The slowdown is especially hard on private colleges and universities, and on the large public institutions. Will the situation improve? Not automatically, cautions William D. McElroy, the NSF's director. Even if the economy picks up, he says, the scientific community will have to prove — "in ways relevant to the kind of society we are becoming" — that it deserves more money.

■ Controlling Disorders: Although campus disturbances have been occurring more often these past few years, the use of outside force — police and the National Guard — has declined steadily since 1967, according to a survey for the President's Commission on Campus Unrest. It shows that mediation and the use of student marshals were the most frequent responses to incidents of unrest during a recent four-month period.

Much controversy has persisted, meanwhile, over what really happened at Kent State University last spring, when four students were killed by National Guardsmen. An Ohio grand jury blamed students and a "permissive" university administration, indicted 25 students and "agitators" (but no guardsmen), and said the guardsmen who fired their weapons believed they were in physical danger. That last point was disputed, however, by the Justice Department. Kent State's president, Robert I. White, called the grand jury's conclusions inaccurate.

■ In Brief: The November elections surprised politicians who thought campus unrest was a winning issue. Many who sought to link their opponents to campus radicalism were defeated . . .

The American Association of University Professors has urged college teachers to defend academic freedom against attacks from their own colleagues . . . Academic administrators have organized a national association to "promote and perpetuate" their profession . . .

A panel of 21 educators has found the admissions tests of the College Entrance Examination Board inadequate "in the context of mass postsecondary education." The group suggests new tests and services to give students more information about college and job opportunities . . .

The dollar value of a college education has increased in the past decade, says the Census Bureau. Men 25 years of age and over can expect a lifetime income of nearly $580,000 if they've had at least four years of college. Ten years earlier the estimate was about $465,000.

ALUMNI REPORT

by J. David Scott, '59, MEd '60, Director, Alumni Affairs

Many alumni events have transpired since our last Alumni Report. Several of our chapters have been quite active and are planning future events.

Looming large on the horizon are the tour to Costa del Sol March 20-27 and ten telefund projects in various chapter areas. Members of the Class of 1921 can look forward to their golden anniversary reunion in June.

For the fourth consecutive year the Alumni Association is sponsoring the Alumni-In-Residence program. Started in 1967, this program has become one of significant interest to both alumni and students because of the opportunities it provides for the alumnus to return to student life and the student to closely view the successful characteristics of the alumnus.

If you would like to return to Athens and Ohio University as an alumnus-in-residence for two or three days during the winter or spring quarter, please contact the Alumni Office, 102 Davis Hall, as soon as possible.

Best wishes for a very happy holiday season.

AKRON: Harold White, '46, president of the Akron Chapter, coordinated alumni activities for the Ohio-Kent State football game at Kent Sept. 19. Dr. Robert Savage, provost, was the featured speaker at a pre-game luncheon and joined a large group of alumni at a mixer following the game. Also present from the University were Jack Ellis, '57, director of development; Dr. James Rodgers, PhD '64, associate professor of education; Maj. Stephen Kovacs, assistant professor of military science and vice president of the Green and White Club, and David Scott. The Akron Chapter is planning a mixer following the Kent-Ohio basketball game Jan. 13. Also, the chapter is planning for a telefund project in March or April.

The Akron Mothers' Club and the Akron Women's Club have been active and are planning future events. Ohio University trustee, Fred Johnson, '22, will meet with the Mothers' Club at a luncheon Feb. 11. Several international students returned to Akron for Thanksgiving as a result of the club's Operation Friendship program. Mrs. Rudolph Debnar is the new president of the Mothers' Club, and Mrs. Frank E. Mabry has been re-elected president of the Women's Club. The Women's Club helped to coordinate the transportation and international students' programs.

ATLANTA: Dale Schonmeyer, '49, newly elected president of the Atlanta Chapter, and his wife, Martha, hosted an alumni dinner at their home Oct. 10. Atlanta area alumni are following with much interest the progress of Todd Snyder, '70, former Ohio football great now with the Atlanta Falcons of the N.F.L. The chapter is planning a Christmas program and will be announcing plans for the annual spring dinner.

CANTON/STARK COUNTY: Alumni from this chapter joined the Summit County group at Kent for the Ohio-Kent State game Sept. 19. Russ Thomas, '50, president of the Stark County Chapter, is planning events for the rest of the year. The Canton group was one of four chapters which participated in the telefund project last year, and area alumni are doing some preliminary planning for a similar program this year.

CINCINNATI: The Cincinnati Chapter hosted a luncheon before the Ohio-Cincinnati football game Oct. 24 and a post-game mixer, with Pres. and Mrs. Claude R. Sowle as guests of honor. Other University guests were Jack Ellis, '57, director of development; Harry Sands, director of annual giving; Michael L'Heureux, director of financial aids; Donald Davis, coordinator of federal programs, and David Scott. Roger Kalkbrenner, '59, president of the Cincinnati Chapter, coordinated plans for performances by the Ohio University Men's Glee Club in Cincinnati Dec. 14 and 15.

CLEVELAND: Several Cleveland alumni participated in the events centering around the Ohio-Kent State football game Sept. 19. The Cleveland Women's Club has again planned an extensive slate of city-wide luncheons featuring guests from the University, as well as programs designed to acquaint alumni with various personalities in the Cleveland area. Program Chairwoman Mrs. Lois Bechtel has reported that meetings will range from folk singing to a student panel discussing student life at the University. Sectional meetings will also be held, and the schedules look rewarding.

The Cleveland Mothers' Club hosted a fashion show Nov. 9 at the Higbee Auditorium with "Entertaining at Home" as its theme. Among many other activities, the Mothers' Club will again coordinate chartered buses to Athens for Mothers' Weekend, April 30-May 2.

The ladies of Cleveland have able leadership in Mrs. Edward Matthews, president of the Women's Club, and Mrs. Ronald E. Schatmeyer, president of the Mothers' Club. Plans are being made for a telefund to be conducted in Cleveland in the spring.

COLUMBUS: The Columbus area Association of Ohio University Women opened its 1970 season on Aug. 22 with a "luau" hosted by Mr. and David Rogers. On Sept. 11 David Scott spoke at the annual student reception in Columbus. Cheryl Fenneken, president of the women's association, is planning further events which include the annual spring dance and a telefund.

COLORADO: A new chapter is being planned for the State of Colorado by Richard Perkins, '52, and Dow Finsterwald, '51. Alumni in the state will soon be receiving correspondence from Dick and Dow regarding the first organizational meeting of the chapter. Anyone interested in assisting them in getting the chapter started should contact Richard Perkins at 1644 Welton, Denver, Col. 80202.

DAYTON: The Dayton Mothers' Club hosted a reception for new students Sept. 9. University guests were Harry Sands, director of annual giving, and David Scott. Mrs. Chester Roush moderated a panel of several Ohio University students who did an excellent job of briefing the prospective freshmen on what to expect during their first year on campus. Mrs. Matthew C. Saunders is president of the Mothers' Club.

MASSACHUSETTS: On Nov. 6 the Massachusetts Chapter, under the leadership of Alan Weinberg, '64, hosted "A Reception for the Presidents," featuring Dr. Vernon Alden, past president of Ohio University; Dr. William J. Holmes, president of Simmons College; Dr. Harry F. Evarts, '51, MS '52, president of Bryant College, and Dr. James Whalen, president of the Newton College of the Sacred Heart. All of these gentlemen are well known to Ohio University alumni in that each served on the Athens campus. The chapter is planning several events, including a March reception for students accepted at the University; a night at the Boston Pops in April; a Monomoy Theater party in July, and a telefund project in the spring.

MINNESOTA: Steve Rowley, '65, was instrumental in planning an alumni luncheon and post-game mixer for the Sept. 26 gridiron contest between Ohio University and Minnesota. Pres. and Mrs. Claude Sowle were the honored guests at the luncheon preceding the game. President Sowle discussed recent events at the University. Also present were Alan Geiger, University planner, and David Scott.

GREATER NEW YORK/NEW JERSEY: The Jesse Zousmer Scholarship Fund was increased through the efforts of the chapter, which had a good turnout at an art show at the Lesnick Galleries in Manhattan Sept. 25. Honored guests were Dr. Jack Morrison, former dean of the College of Fine Arts; his wife, Jeanne Cagney Morrison, and the director of the School of Art, Henry Lin. Emil Kustin, '40, president of the chapter, was recently elected to the alumni board of directors. Wally Hodes, '43, is very active in the chapter and was recently elected vice president

ORLANDO: The Orlando Chapter has planned a slate of events centering around the Tangerine Bowl basketball tournament Dec. 29 and 30 in Orlando, Fla. The tournament features the Bobcats, along with Stetson, Rollins and Seton Hall. Coach Jim Snyder will meet with alumni at a luncheon Dec. 29. There will be a luncheon on Dec. 30 also, and post-game mixers are planned for both nights. Pres. and Mrs. Claude Sowle will attend the activities, campus responsibilities permitting.

ROCHESTER: Alumni in the Rochester area viewed an audio-visual presentation of Ohio University and heard from David Scott and Donald Davis, coordinator of federal programs for the University, at a dinner Nov. 13. Donald Ben- cin, '61, is president of the chapter. The chapter hosted a going away party for all area Ohio University students Sept. 13 and co-hosted a wine-lasting party and buffet dinner with Bowling Green State University alumni Oct. 2. A Monte Carlo party is planned for March.

WEST VIRGINIA: Charles Lewis, '40, coordinated a visit to the Charleston area by Ohio University's newly formed Men's Glee Club under the direction of Eugene Wickstrom, assistant professor of music. The group entertained students Nov. 6 at Nitro, St. Albans, Charleston and George Washington high schools.

TOLEDO: Alumni from the Toledo area turned out for a pre-game luncheon and post-game mixer in Bowling Green Nov. 7 when the Bobcats played the Bowling Green Falcons. Robert Monti, '50, president of the Toledo Chapter, made the arrangements.

The Toledo Mothers' Club has continued its active slate of events. On Oct. 13 the mothers gathered to hear James Rose of the Toledo Trust Co. discuss ways to finance college education. Chartered buses transported area students for the Thanksgiving holiday, and on Dec. 3 the club welcomed Jerrold A. Grifflis, who discussed residence life at the University and participated in an interesting question-and-answer session. Mothers' Club president is Mrs. Wellington Schaal.

YOUNGSTOWN: The Youngstown Mothers' Club has had several events to date, and members are planning several more activities throughout the year. On Sept. 23 the club held a get acquainted luncheon. A panel of five students, along with David Scott, met with a large group of mothers Oct. 28. Monthly meetings, with interesting and informative programs, are planned for the rest of the year. Kay Geinma is president.

PLACE KICKER Jim Kensinger played a big role in Ohio's 17-14 Homecoming victory over the Dayton Flyers.

Ohio Fans Celebrate 17-14 Homecoming Win

Despite a rainy and cloudy weekend, Homecoming 1970 offered numerous enjoyable events for Ohio University students and alumni.

Highlighting the weekend of Oct. 9 and 10 was the Bobcats' 17-14 triumph over the University of Dayton Flyers. Ohio's victory came in the last eight seconds of the game with a successful field goal attempt.

Terry Haut, a sophomore representing Johnson Hall, was crowned queen at intermission of Saturday night's homecoming concert which featured the popular Three Dog Night and Charade.

Taking the other trophies were Tau Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Kappa for the best parade floats, Voight and Howard halls in the house decorations division and Garmersfelder and Mackinnon halls for special projects.

The weekend opened Friday night with the traditional homecoming parade led by the grand marshal, William Fen-zel, '18, who had been named "Outstanding Alumnus of the Year" by the 1970 homecoming committee. Recognized for his "long service to the University, students and Alumni Association," Professor Emeritus Fenzel was also the honored guest at all alumni functions.

Fenzel began his teaching career at Ohio University in 1918 and retired two years ago after 50 years of teaching accounting and economics on campus. A recipient of the honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Ohio University, Fenzel is currently director emeritus of the alumni board of directors. He served 41 years as treasurer and two years as president of the Alumni Association.

Six other alumni were honored during the weekend with their induction into the Ohio University Athletic Hall of Fame. The six included Chet Adams, '39, George Brown, '31, Carlisle Dollings, '25, Clark Gabriel, '32, John Malokas, '38, and Carl Ott, '41.

$500,000 ALUMNI GOAL SET

Directors of the Ohio University Alumni Association have set $500,000 in alumni contributions as their goal for fiscal year 1970-71.

The board, meeting in Athens Oct. 9, unanimously agreed on the one-half million dollar figure and also to raise the number of alumni donating to the University to 16 percent, the national average for state-assisted universities.

To assist in these efforts, the directors approved a major program to encourage donor membership in alumni societies, such as Cutler, Jacob Lindley and 1804, and in the Trustees' Academy. Several alumni committees geared to fund-raising were established.

During their seven-hour meeting, the directors also discussed the state of the University with Pres. Claude R. Sowle; set alumni objectives for the year, and established committee responsibilities.

Appointed committee chairmen were Richard O. Linke, '41, annual alumni giving; Wallace Hodes, '43, Trustees' Academy and director nominations; Paul Brickman, '46, alumni communications; Dr. Emil Kustin, '40, alumni telefunds; Robert Reider, '39, alumni VIP; Eugene Rinta, '38, athletic liaison; Ralph Beckert, '23, awards; Dr. Wil Konneker, '43, MS '47, senior class challenge liaison, and Judge Olive Holmes, '38, constitution, by-laws and resolutions committee.

Presiding at his first meeting as the newly elected president, Richard Linke introduced new board members Arthur Aspengren, '55, MA '56, J. David Carr, '42, Dr. Kustin, Dr. Peter Yanity, '49, and Frank Baumholtz, '41.

Other members attending were Lillie Greer, '25, Dr. Ray Lupse, '36, Milton Berry, '50, and William Fenzel, '18.

MARCHING MEN HOST FALL BAND FESTIVAL

By Patricia Black

On Saturday, Oct. 24, Peden Stadium echoed with the music of marching bands from Ohio University and ten high schools from across the state. The noteworthy occasion was the Ohio University Marching Band Festival.

Gene Thraikill, Ohio University's director of bands, hopes such festivals will become an annual thing. Whether or not that happens, however, depends upon such variable factors as how many home games the football team plays in a given year, whether or not the band travels with the team and what other athletic activities will be scheduled for the stadium and when.

But for this first festival everything worked out beautifully. Bands came from Athens, Berne Union, Coshocton, Dixie (New Lebanon), Dover, Fairfield Union, Marietta, Oak Hill, Reynoldsburg and Wickliffe high schools.

"I thought of the whole festival as an educational experience," Thraikill said. "I didn't want it to be a competition among the bands because in order to have a winner it would be necessary to have nine losers and that wasn't the idea. The purpose was to give the band participants a chance to watch each other in action; to give them the opportunity of performing before an audience that knows what to appreciate, and to give the high school directors a chance to exchange ideas. The festival was planned as an afternoon of enjoyment for participants and audience."

And apparently the audience did enjoy it. At the end of the second performance by the 110 Marching Men of Ohio (they played twice, bracketing the performances of the visiting bands), all of the 200-plus spectators, and at least that many band members, were on their feet clapping, whistling and calling for more. So the famous 110 obligingly gained their current popularity by ignoring the wishes of their audiences. They play popular Motown music, selected by Director Thraikill and put together by a student arranging staff.

If you'd like to hear the 110 Marching Men of Ohio, now is the time. Write to Gene Thraikill, Director, Ohio University Bands, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio 45701, to order their latest record.

Meanwhile, all of you band alumni should be writing to him about the band alumni organization. He said the response to the last plea for information was very gratifying, but he can't call the rest of you 'till you call him.

By the way, in spite of the name 110 Marching MEN of Ohio, Gene emphasizes that women who are band alumni are urged, begged, asked, coaxed and otherwise encouraged to join the organization.

Classes of '20 and '45 Renew Old Friendships

The president of the Class of 1920, Dr. Ruhl J. Bartlett, returned to Ohio University in mid-October to be the spokesman for his classmates as they celebrated their golden anniversary reunion.

Dr. Bartlett, professor of diplomatic history at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University, characterized the typical reunion address as a "long and dreary speech, filled with reminiscences . . . seldom awaited with eagerness by the class and scarcely endured by others present."

In this spirit Dr. Bartlett delivered the following five-minute talk in which he expressed two thoughts he believed appropriate to the occasion.

I have spent all my time during the past half century in academic communities, mostly at Tufts University, but before going there and during leaves of absence and in summer sessions, I have been at other universities in all sections of the nation and, to a small extent, abroad. I have been acquainted in these places with a large number of professors, many of whom are distinguished in their fields.

Yet, during these past 50 years in academic life, I have never found a group of college teachers more interested in their students, more humane in their outlook on life or more scholarly than the group that constituted the principal members of the faculty at Ohio University in 1920.

It is my belief that no member of this class could say with truth that his professors were unapproachable; unkind in their attitudes; in any way unprepared in their subjects, or devoted primarily to their own personal interests.

A great teacher must not only be competent and absorbing in his subject, he must also have a spark of inspiration so that the personality of the teacher and the substance of what he teaches are one. And when this happens, what people today speak of as the relevance of teaching will not be doubted by anyone who wishes to learn.

As a group, our principal professors were inspiring teachers; gentlemen in conduct, example and self-respect, and gave dignity to the title of professor. My memory of them remains bright after 50 years.

My other thought involves a reminiscence which is the key to my comment.

You will all remember Prof. Frederick Truedley who was our class counselor for three years and to whom we dedicated our annual, along with Prof. Hiram Wilsop who guided us during our senior year. You may remember also that during the last part of his tenure here, Professor Truedley was frequently ill and unable to attend his classes.

For some reason, perhaps because I had taken his courses, he often asked me to meet with his class in philosophy and act as a kind of moderator in leading a discussion of the subject of the day. On such occasions I always visited him in his home either before or after the class.

One evening I made an unthinking remark to the effect that since Mrs. Truedley had passed away and he was not well, he must be very lonely. He said, "No. I am never lonely, my realm is far."

I do not know what I thought about this remark then, but I have remembered it and thought about it hundreds of times since.

A large literature is devoted to the meaning and content of liberal education, but it seems to me that the center and essence of liberal education is an introduction to the vast experiences of mankind; an introduction to the enduring and creative literature of the civilized world, and an introduction to some insight into the physical phenomena of the universe. Then, with this education, when a person is confronted with the complicated problems and pressures of his time he can bring to his thinking about them more than slogans, cliches, jargons and nonsequiturs and, in addition, can so construct his life that in the evening of it he can say, "I am never lonely, my realm is far."

As individuals, if we have not achieved something of this vision of liberal education it has not been the fault of the opportunities and associations we had here.

Fall Enrollment Up 4%

Men continue to outnumber women at Ohio University. Official enrollment figures for the fall quarter show 10,757 men and 7,882 women on the main Athens campus. The University's total enrollment is 23,920, an almost four percent increase over 1969. This figure includes the main campus, the five regional campuses and the two educational centers. Of the 18,639 students on the main campus, 4,279 are freshmen and 1,781 are graduate students. Enrollment at the regional campuses is: Belmont County, 961; Chillicothe, 773; Lancaster, 1,159; Portsmouth, 765, and Zanesville, 1,054. ## Doing the Big Apple...

... was the latest dance craze. Margaret Plumly was doing it; and so were Sidney Mintz and Eloine Harshbarger. Chi Os Bethel Lichty and Betty Fell did it at the Press Cotillion and down at the ornery Mat Ivary and Doris Killinen, while securely handcuffed together, were doing it to the music of E. Rexford Koons.

Events that year were reported by Hermon Burstein for the campus newspaper, the Green and White, and Homer Hacker was even then trying to get the stor-crossed Ohioan humor maga-zine off probation.

It had been 152 years since the meeting at the Bunch of Grapes tavern, and Ohio University, with Hermon Jones as president, had grown to 3,024 students.

FDR sat in the White House and in Europe, Chamberlain returned from the Munich Conference with promises of "peace in our time." Back in Athens, Arthur DeLuca proclaimed Virginia Shumote honorary colonel of the first Military Ball.

Joe Chizek and Andy Mruzik helped Don Peden's Bobcats upset Rio Grande 80-0, but broke an eight-year stadium record when they lost to Dayton in the last five seconds. Nick Lolich was forword for the cagers and, with Toni Reis pitching to Woody Wills, the baseball team clinched the pennant. Eli Hirsimaki was the varsity vaulter and Burnice Crabtree ran the intramural 220.

Eleven McGuffey elms still lined the compus and under them the J-Club inducted Dan Wertman and Arthur Navarre; in the spring the Betas won permanent possession of the Torch Sing cup.

Benny Goodman gave his famaus Cornegie Hall Jazz Con-cert in New York that year and Alpha Phi Delta traveled en mosse to the Hotel Astor, while ot the Delt winter formal Count Basie ployed "Marie" continuously for a half hour. Walter Kinney arranged the music for the Prep Follies, and Beatrice Steiner and Bud Mittleman storred in the theater production of "Stoge Door."

That was the year Alma Tingle and Ode DeVall graduoted along with Stanley Hitsky and Oscar Grusky. Robert Reider was o junior, while Mona Snoak and Elsie Updyke were sophamores.

The nation's leading pictorial magazine was Life and the Athena copied the format to show that college was: "Just real life with a college setting." It picked Winifred Healy and Rolph Mohler os typical students and had Barbara Frolich photo-graph them on a date to see Irene Dunn in "The Awful Truth."

Schine's theater was also the scene of the crowning of Lois Wise os Atheno Queen and the trophy presentotion to Sigma Pi for having the homeliest dog on campus.

Fred Crouch was topped for Torch, and Volerio Droghic and Phyllis Toggart attended the Trapezoid high tea and rose banquet.

Stonley Cole didn't hove much time for any of this folderol; he was busy thumbing his way to Zanesville.

These ond many other fascinating tidbits may be gleaned from the yearbook far that wonderful, wonderful year—1938!

If your copy al the Athena was misplaced, along with your Artie Shaw records and Alf Landon buttons, or if you're too young to remember and would like to know what it was like in the good old days, you can obtain a copy of the Athena for any of these years: '38, '44, '45, '53, '55, '58, '59, '60, '61, '62, '64, '65, '66, '67, '68, '70. Send o check for six dollars, payable to ATHENA '71, Boker Center, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio 45701.

Just soy, "I'd like ta be young ogoin on the College Green," and give the year.

Trustees' Academy Grows

Three persons recently joined the 100-plus membership of Ohio University's major donor society, the Trustees' Academy. The new members are Dr. Wilfred Konneker, '43, MS '47, Ellisville, Mo.; Richard P. Banks, '43, Columbus, and Sam Alvarez, Athens.

Membership in the Trustees' Academy is contingent on a gift of $10,000 pledged over a ten-year period or on a deferred gift of $25,000 made available through insurance, bequest, trust or another type of deferred agreement.

Dr. Konneker, vice president of Mallinckrodt Chemical Works, St. Louis, Mo., and general manager of its New Ventures Division, serves as a member of the alumni board of directors and has long been active in the development of alumni programs in the St. Louis area. A recipient of the alumni Certificate of Merit for his service to alma mater and for outstanding accomplishments in the field of science, Dr. Konneker was the founder and president of Nuclear Consultants, Inc., commonly referred to as "the world's first atomic drugstore."

A member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, Konneker and his wife, Ann Lee, are parents of one daughter, Barbara Lynn. Banks, a partner in the McElroy-Minister Co. of Columbus since 1965, is familiar to many people in the Athens area because of his family ties to the University. Banks' father was head football coach at Ohio University in the late teens, and Banks formerly owned and operated a sporting goods store in Athens. A member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, Banks served as chairman of the fund drive which culminated in the recent completion of a new chapter house. Married to the former Suzanne Danford, '42, they are parents of one daughter, Mrs. Penny Banks Sandhoff.

Sam Alvarez, president and owner of Athens Office Supply, Inc., since 1964, has been an active booster for Ohio University for many years. Born in Oviedo, Spain, and reared in the Charleston, W. Va., and Athens areas, Alvarez has been a member of the Ohio University Associates, the Green and White Club and is chairman of the 1970-71 Athens Business Drive to benefit Ohio University. He is married to the former Sara Jane Kern of Athens.

MISS MARY LEE Sherman, a senior from Lebanon majoring in radio-television, is the first recipient of the Richard O. Linke Scholarship. She received the $1,500 award from Linke, '41.

Tax Advantages of Fund Gifts Explained

Because of changes in the tax structure, gifts made to The Ohio University Fund, Inc., by Dec. 31, 1970, have definite tax advantages which will not be available during 1971, according to Fund Director Jack Ellis, '57.

The higher your tax bracket, the greater the tax savings on charitable gifts, and it is very probable your bracket will be higher this year than next.

For instance, you have a five percent surcharge on regular tax rates for the first half of 1970. This, in essence, is a two and one-half percent surcharge for the entire year which, according to the new law, will not be imposed during 1971. Therefore, your tax rate is higher for 1970.

Personal exemptions for you and your dependents are raised to $625 for this year and will be raised to $650 in 1971, $700 for 1972 and $750 for years thereafter. The higher your personal exemptions, the lower your tax bracket.

Single persons will be paying lower taxes in 1971 because of the Tax Reform Act of 1969. Taxes for these persons can be as much as 40 percent higher this year than those paid by a married couple with the same taxable income. The new schedule for 1971 assures that single returns will not be greater than 20 percent of those paid by joint returns.

Additional taxes being paid this year can, therefore, be minimized by placing charitable gifts promptly.

CLASS MEETS at the new Thomas M. Wolfe Memorial Garden located between Cutler Hall and the Alden Library.

WOLFE MEMORIAL GARDEN HONORS UNIVERSITY ALUM

The most precious resources of life are books, friends, nature. The greatest of these is nature, an irresistible storehouse, which moves the heart, appeals to the mind, gives health to the body and joy to the soul.

—JOHN BURROUGHS

Lying between the new Alden Library and historic Cutler Hall, the Thomas M. Wolfe Memorial Garden is fast becoming a favorite outdoor classroom.

The garden, completed last spring, honors Thomas M. Wolfe, '19, professor emeritus of finance at Ohio University and president of the Athens National Bank at the time of his death in 1961.

Planned by Mrs. Wolfe and University landscape consultant, Marion V. Packard, the garden contains two plaques, one with the above quotation from American nature writer, John Burroughs, and one from Wolfe.

The Wolfe quotation reads, "Let us hope that we who are privileged to be a part of a long illustrious line may have an abiding interest in the things of the mind, the pursuit of truth, the contemplation of beauty and the attainment of the good life."

After graduation as valedictorian of his class, Wolfe attended the Harvard University School of Business Administration where he also taught for two years.

He later returned to Athens to become secretary-treasurer of the Sugar Creek-Millfield Coal Mining Co. and to teach finance at the University. A Navy ensign in World War I, Wolfe was president of the Athens National for ten years prior to his death.

Among the interesting plant materials in the garden are an imperial thornless locust tree, two spreading junipers, several crabapple trees, a sweet gum, pink and white dogwoods and magnolias. Shrubbery, with spreading, curving branches, evergreen leaves and red berries, planted on top and at the base of the stone walls, and pachysandra ground cover add interest and variety.

It is hoped that the garden will serve as an inspiration, as well as a source of beauty and refreshment, for all those who use it.

Burt Campbell, '61, Known POW

If your husband or son or father or brother or friend were being held captive, would you write your elected officials and Hanoi for him?

Would you do the same thing for someone else's husband or son or father or brother?

Air Force Capt. Burt W. Campbell, '61, has been a prisoner of war since July 1, 1966.

He is among 150 men believed held prisoner by the North Vietnamese, the NLF, and other Communist forces. Another 1,100 Americans are believed missing in action.

Captain Campbell's wife, Bonnie, is state coordinator for the Ohio Chapter of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

The non-profit, non-political league has three main goals: to obtain the names of the imprisoned men; to secure their release; and to convince their captors that it is to their advantage to keep the men alive and to treat them humanely.

Mrs. Campbell writes, asking for help from alumni.

"I strongly believe that the letters written to Hanoi, Paris, etc. — plus the editorials, documentaries and the families telling their stories — have helped.

"During the past four and one-half years of my husband's imprisonment, I have received nine letters from him, six of them in the past year. As of last Christmas, fewer than 100 men had written. Now more than half of the prisoners have been allowed to send at least one letter.

"Ohio has the sixth largest number of POW/MIA families . . . Some of these men are going into their seventh year as a POW. Time may well be running out."

Your letter, sent to the Office of the President, Democratic Republic of Vietnam, Hanoi, North Vietnam, should be brief and to the point.

For more information about what you can do to help, write to Mrs. Campbell at POW/MIA, 315 Broad St., Elyria 44033.

New South Green Nearing Completion

Triple accommodation in Ohio University residence halls may be a thing of the past in the not-too-distant future.

The key to alleviating overcrowded rooms lies with the new South Green. Last September ten residence halls — all with single and double rooms — in the $17.9 million complex were opened. This has already made it possible for the University to decrease the number of triple rooms in other dormitories.

Five more buildings in the South Green are scheduled for completion sometime next year, and when the complex is finished, the University will be able to house nearly 10,000 students.

The planning and decor of the South Green is a break from the traditional dormitory blueprint.

Suites, composed of a formal lounge for use during the 24-hour open visitation and an informal lounge used for the restricted noon-to-midnight visitation, are set up to accommodate 12 to 18 students and their guests. No two lounges in any, one hall are decorated the same.

View of South Green looking northwest toward East Green.

Running from each informal lounge is a short corridor leading to six rooms. The advantages of these abbreviated hallways, according to South Green residents, are many. The most noticeable advantage is the reduction in noise. In the long corridor of the traditional dormitory, it is almost impossible for all floor residents to know one another well and therefore, difficult to develop a spirit of cooperation in maintaining "quiet hours."

In the South Green halls there is a spirit of cooperation and, with fewer people in the halls, the noise is greatly reduced. Couple these elements with the carpeting in the corridors and it is probably quieter in a South Green residence hall than in some of the multiple-family apartment buildings in Athens.

All rooms have indirect lighting, and each student has his own large desk with extra bookshelves built above. The baths — shared by no more than six students — have built-in closets and cabinets so that students no longer have to carry their toiletries up and down the halls.

The South Green buildings are grouped around a common landscaped green and have connecting walkways leading to a cafeteria and snack bar.

Political Week in October Attracts Prominent National Figures to Campus

New Haven, Conn., police chief James Ahern and U.S. Sen. Robert W. Packwood, Republican of Oregon, headed a varied list of speakers who came to campus for Ohio University's first Political Week, Oct. 19-23.

Police Chief Ahern, making his first appearance on a major university campus, called the police officer "the least understood and appreciated of any municipal employee" and said that police departments as a whole are "the most ill-equipped and ill-prepared of any government organization."

The policeman's role is that of a referee, Ahern asserted. "He should be apolitical and he must play the role and protect the right for peaceful protest and dissent and fulfill his obligation to protect life and property."

The afternoon session was interrupted briefly when University Security Director Robert Guinn reported that the University had received a bomb threat. Only about 100 persons of approximately 1,800 left Memorial Auditorium after Ahern announced he would continue his speech. A package containing a clock, wires, battery and a bundle of broom handles was found in a fire hydrant in the lobby and was dismantled on the University golf course by a demolition crew called in from Lockbourne Air Force Base.

Since his handling of campus disturbances at Yale, Ahern has served on the President's Commission on Campus Unrest and has appeared on Meet the Press in regard to that subject.

Senator Packwood defended his "population control" legislation before almost 1,400 persons during his Kennedy Lecture appearance on campus. According to the senator's aboration act, introduced in the Senate early this year, any woman in any state would have the right to terminate an unwanted pregnancy. The junior senator from Oregon said that people line up about two to one in favor of the bill's passage.

The senator also talked about Vietnam, saying he supported the president's handling of the war and believed the United States will be out of a combat role in the war-torn country by June.

Other notable speakers appearing during political week included Charlotte Bunch-Weeks, organizer of the first women's liberation group in Washington, D.C., in 1967 and a second group in Cleveland in 1968; Paul Krassner, radical left founder and editor of The Realist magazine; Kevin Phillips, controversial political analyst of the right and author of The Emerging Republican Majority, who is credited with designing and carrying out the campaign which won the South for President Nixon, and Mrs. Ysabel Rennie, who testified recently before a U.S. Senate subcommittee on her four years of study concerning prison conditions in Ohio.

During Political Week students elected new student government representatives and voted their preference for Ohio governor and U.S. senator. John J. Gilligan won over his Republican opponent, Roger Cloud, and Howard Metzenbaum was preferred over Republican Cong. Robert Taft, Jr. (On Nov. 3, Ohio voters chose Gilligan and Taft for the governor's and senator's posts.)

Accelerator . . . continued from page 1

Rapaport says. The 11-million-volt tandem accelerator at Ohio University, however, is number one of a new variant. (Number two of the series is being constructed for a laboratory in Athens, Greece.)

Explaining how the expensive and complicated instrument will be used in the research program, Finlay compared the accelerator to a giant microscope. Since the atomic nucleus is about 1,000 times smaller than the atom itself—and perhaps a million times smaller than a living cell—larger and more powerful "microscopes" are needed to study its structure.

"Even though the atomic nucleus has been the subject of intensive study since the 1930s, many fundamental features of the basic forces which hold the nucleus together are only poorly understood," he said. "A better understanding of these forces would give us more insight into such subjects as the energy-producing processes in the sun and the origin of the chemical elements on the earth."

The research program is sponsored jointly by the AEC and by Ohio University for the dual purpose of basic research and training students in the methods of nuclear physics. The work is in no way restricted by federal security regulations, and the laboratory is open to the public.

The physicists and their graduate students, several University technicians and two men from the manufacturer are maintaining a rigorous schedule to get the accelerator ready for operation. They expect to complete their work by the first of the year and put the equipment into action.

In one sense, however, the physicists' wait is not over.

In building the accelerator, the manufacturer ran into an unforeseen engineering problem in its design and each effort at correcting the difficulty was unsuccessful. This accounts for a least one year's delay in the accelerator's arrival.

Rather than waiting still another year, the physicists agreed to accept the machine as it was and to allow the manufacturer more time to solve the engineering problem within his laboratory.

When the problem is solved, he will deliver the necessary parts and the accelerator will then be modified in the Ohio University laboratory and finally be capable of working to its projected capacity.

"This," according to experimentalist Dr. Raymond Lane, "will be our most jubilant moment." And the other physicists agree.

A TOLEDO GOALIE tries to stop a shot by Ohio's soccer team. All-American candidate, Ed Roberts, is pictured center.

Soccer Team Closes Outstanding '70 Season

A record-shattering performance by junior Ed Roberts paced the Ohio soccer team to a 9-3 record.

The Bobcats posted wins over Wright State, Denison, Toledo, Kent State, Ohio State, Miami, West Virginia, Akron and Bowling Green. The three losses were to Cleveland State, Pittsburgh and Michigan State.

Roberts, from Monrovia, Liberia, scored 17 goals and five assists to lead a potent Ohio offense. The 17 goals and 22 points cracked Ohio season records for the All-American candidate. Roberts is the brother of another Ohio soccer great, Sam Roberts, '67, who was selected All-Ohio in 1965 and 1966.

Suliman Shwabe, a junior from Tobruk, Libya, kicked eight goals and notched four assists to rank behind Roberts in the scoring column.

Junior goalie Dennis O'Rourke of Paramus, N.J., sparked an Ohio defense that allowed only two opponents more than two goals.

Bobcats Clinch Second Place in MAC

Coach Bill Hess and his 13th edition of Bobcat football, picked to finish last in the Mid-American Conference, won three of five MAC games to finish second.

The second place finish was a tie with Miami, but a far cry from the cellar position assigned to the Ohio team by league writers and coaches prior to kickoff 1970.

Recapping, Ohio was rated as the underdog against Kent State in the opener at Kent but came through with a rousing 24-14 victory. Senior quarterback Steve Skiver, starting his first full campaign after backing up Cleve Bryant for two seasons, made a memorable beginning by passing for two scores from ten and 13 yards away and running for a third from two yards out. Sophomore tailback Bill Gary also had a day, establishing a school record with 43 carries, netting 158 yards.

Minnesota's Golden Gophers were just too big and strong for the game Bobcats and steamrolled Ohio 49-7.

Toledo's defending MAC champions, unbeaten in 11 games in 1969, came to Athens 2-0 for the season. The two teams battled scotless for a period, but then TU got the first break with an interception and went on to put 20 points on the scoreboard. Ohio battled back to 20-7 with Gary scoring on a ten-yard burst, but the Rockets had too much fire power and scored 22 second-half points for a 42-7 victory over the Bobcats.

Next came Homecoming and the Dayton Flyers. UD capitalized on an Ohio fumble on the Bobcat 40 and went up 6-0 early, a lead which held up until the fourth quarter.

Ohio took over a short UD punt on the Dayton 49 and went in on the 12th play with Gary from one yard out. Jim Kensingner booted the PAT for a 7-6 Ohio lead. Then a UD fumble was covered by Mike Crummins at the Dayton nine. Skiver ran in from two yards out and it was 14-6. Dayton picked off an Ohio pass at the 'Cat 42 and marched in on the tenth play, passing successfully for a two-point conversion to tie it at 14-all. Ohio took the ensuing kickoff and marched to within field goal range where a 29-yard field goal attempt by Kensingner was blocked. But the ball was fumbled by a Dayton player and recovered by Juenger at the five. Again, with but eight seconds left, Kensingner tried another placement from 22 yards away and made good for a 17-14 Ohio victory.

Undefeated Miami came to town looking for a Bobcat pelt, but the Bobcats were at their best. The first quarter was seasaw, but Ohio marched 80 yards in 13 plays midway in the second with Skiver passing to Steve Hodgson for a 7-0 halftime lead. Miami fumbled the first time they had the ball after intermission and, on the second play, Skiver hit Allen for a 42-yard scoring strike. The PAT kick was blocked and it was 13-0 Ohio. Ohio's Bart Dampier picked off a Miami pass then up a 22-yard field goal by Kensingner, giving Ohio a 16-0 bulge with 9:09 left. Miami marched for its first score with 6:29 left in the third, but before the period was out Skiver hit Allen again on a 61-yard TD bomb, and the 'Cats led 23-7. In four plays Miami scored to pull within 23-14, and then an Ohio fumble set up another 'Skin TD taking it in from the 23. Miami rai a two-point conversion, and it was 23-22 Ohio with 16 seconds left. Three Ohio interceptions, two by Vic Papushak, stopped Miami's fourth-quarter drives and made the score stand up.

After the big Miami win and before a crucial trip to Western Michigan, Ohio visited Cincinnati. The script was written when Ohio fumbled the kickoff to set up UC's first TD from the Ohio 36. The Bobcats were to lose two more by fumbles and suffer four interceptions as Gincy managed a 29-21 victory.

Ohio hit bottom at Western Michigan, as the Broncos set school marks running up a 52-23 victory over the hapless Bobcats. Defensive errors kept the Bobcats behind from the kickoff in a game they were really never in.

Once again the Bobcats received and put on their best performance of the season at Bowling Green as they pummeled the Falcons 34-7. Gary scored twice in the first half on runs of seven and 17 yards, and Kensingner booted a 22-yard field goal while the defense shut off BG for a 20-0 halftime lead.

Snyder's Team Ready for Tough Schedule

Basketball coach Jim Snyder expressed satisfaction with the progress of his 22nd edition, as the Ohio Bobcats prepared for their home opener against West Virginia Wesleyan.

"We've had some pretty good practices," Snyder reported. "The team is working hard and is in good condition."

With 291 coaching victories to his credit, the magic 900 should be within reach of Ohio's veteran coach during this season.

"We'll have a fairly decent first five," Snyder assessed. "Craig Love is a good center, and we're well off at the guard spots with Ken Kowall and Tommy Corde and have good depth with Larry Hunter, Mike Miller and sophomore Ken Heiby.

"We have some good players at forward but lack good size there," Snyder admitted.

Bobby Howell, at 6-4 who saw action in Ohio's first nine games last year before being sidelined with an eye injury, has the inside track on one forward spot.

Gary Wolf, 6-8 Columbus DeSales senior, will be given first shot at the other forward spot and, if he comes through, will help with the size problem and lend some depth to that position. Florida transfer Todd Lalich is another forward prospect.

Ohio Grapplers, Swimmers, Icers Open Indoor Play

Ohio University's wrestling and swimming teams are preparing to defend their Mid-American Conference honors this winter, while the Bobcat hockeymen are keying for a rugged Mid-Eastern Collegiate Hockey Association schedule.

Coach Harry Houska's wrestlers, ninth in the nation last year, return their top man in each weight class. Defending champions are Bruce Trammell, Bruce Husta, Rich Panella and Ross Johnson.

The grapplers face a difficult schedule this winter, tangling with four of the top six teams in the country.

The Bobcat swimmers under Coach Fletcher Gilders will be after their third straight M-G crown. Arpad Batizy, as a freshman last winter, set MAC records in the 500 and 1650 freestyle events. He returns, along with Ned Steele, the MAC champion in the 50-yard freestyle.

The swimmers opened their home season Dec. 5.

Coach John McComb's icers opened a 16-game home schedule against the Air Force Academy Nov. 20.

Five of the seven top players from last season are back, including scoring leader Ed Mundy and captain Alex MacNichol.
